

Can I get credits towards an Applied Business course if I have studied it at another institution or done it as part of a job?

James Patterson - 2018-11-12 - Applied Business

You can apply for cross credits for whole courses where you have previously completed a similar course/courses or job covering at least 80% of the learning outcomes at the same level at another approved provider. Forms are available from Programme Area Reception, or find them on the NMIT online Applied Business Home page. If you are an international student seeking an RPL for a course on a Graduate Diploma Programme you will not receive a refund on course fees. We encourage applications for recognition of prior learning where you can clearly demonstrate or provide independent confirmation that you have work or life experience. Usually you must demonstrate that these cover at least 80% of the learning outcomes for a course. There is a $50 application fee plus $50 per hour to a maximum of $500 for assessment of an RP.