

How can I save money on food while studying?

Sarah Ryder - 2022-01-12 - Living in New Zealand

Are you a New Zealand student on a tight budget? Are you an international student getting used to different pricing and ways of doing things?

No matter your situation, there are many ways to save money on food. Some of these include:

- Make your own lunch, such as sandwiches, or pack leftovers.
- Refill your water or juice bottle or make your own coffee instead of purchasing drinks.
- In supermarkets or other larger stores, buy the supermarket own-brand labels.
- Buy staples like rice in bulk.
- In Nelson and Marlborough there are speciality food shops that may have the foods you are looking for - ask your fellow students or our international cultural advisors.
- Check out studentrecipes.com for some cheap and easy ideas for cooking your own food.
- Buy fruit and vegetables that are in season, or frozen.
- Farmers markets are a good option for purchasing cheap fruit and vegetables.
 - Nelson: shop at Nelson's Wednesday Farmers Market or the Saturday market in Montgomery Square.
 - Marlborough: there is a Farmers Market each Sunday at the A&P Showgrounds.

Related Content

- Do you offer any scholarships for international students?
- What financial assistance is available to students studying at NMIT?
- What is student discount and how do I get it?
- What are the best online sources of information about living and studying in New Zealand?